Martius (with his book-plate and a second without name), has the same title-page, the same maps, and a similar colophon, yet shows many differences in detail. It has 30 unnumbered leaves after the maps; the epigram by Daniel Rogerus Albimontanus is printed on verso of title, but is not in the first copy, where verso of title-page is blank; the signature-marks differ and the arrangement of the text on the leaves following the title-page shows differences; the catalogue of authorities in the first copy contains 87 names, that in the second 91, with changes in names cited; the indices to the maps have wide variations; on 8ª the first copy has a table of errata, while the corrections have been made in the second copy; the text on the maps, the essay by Humfredus Lhvyd, "De Mona Drvidvm Insvla," and the tables have been reset. The last leaf of the first copy contains "Ad Libri Compactorem," "Signa & Series Foliorum," "Tenor Privilegii," and the colophon. Copy No. 2 prints the "Signa et Series Foliorvm," "Tenor Privilegii," and colophon, omitting "xx Maii," on 30ᵇ. In no respect can copy No. 2 be mistaken for the Antwerp editions of 1573 and 1574. 42 unnumbered leaves, with signature-marks, –E. 192×145 mm. On 2a begins Eden's "Epistle Dedicatorie" to "Syr William Wynter, Knyght, Maister of the Ordinaunce of the Queenes Maiesties Shippes and Surueyor of the said Shippes;" and on 5a is the letter of John Taisnier to John Gebhard, "Archbishop of Colen." On the original pigskin cover: "This book, once the property of the great Lord Shaftesbury, was purchased at the Sale of Duplicates, &c., of the present Lord by William Prideaux at Bath, Anno 18—, and given by him to Robert Anstice." On 3a Eden states: "By whiche description, some doo vnderstand that the knowledge of the longitude myght so be founde, a thyng doubtlesse greatly to be desyred, and hytherto not certaynely knowen, although Sebastian Cabot on his death bed tolde me that he had the knowledge thereof by diuine reuelation, yet so, that he myght not teache any man. But I thinke that the good olde man, in that extreme age, somewhat doted, and had not yet euen in the article of death, vtterly shaken of all worldlye vayne glorie." The border on the title-page is the same as used in Eden's translation of Cortes, page 211, supra. John Carter Brown, I. 310, where 1576 is conjectured to be the year of publication, because Richard Jugge died in 1577, though the widow, Joan Jugge, continued the business until 1579. That date is given in the British Museum Catalogue.

CARO, Annibale.

2 vols. Vol. I: 4 unnumbered leaves (except for "3" on 2a), and 176 pages. Vol. II: 4 unnumbered leaves (except for "3" on 2a), and 272 pages. 192×135 mm. Vol. I was edited by Giovanni Battista Caro and Vol. II by Lepido Caro. A mention of Verrazzano is on page 7 of Vol. I. "In this volume is a letter from Castro to the members of the household of M. de Gaddi containing a humorous account of a journey which Caro was then making. Addressing the different members of the family he proceeds thus: 'As for you, Verrazzano, a discoverer of new worlds and their wonders, I cannot as yet tell you anything worthy of your map, for we have not thus far passed through your country, which had not already been discovered by your brother.' From this remarkable passage, Tiraboschi conjectures, that Giovanni himself and not his brother, a person wholly unknown to the writers of the age, was the person addressed: that having been badly rewarded for his services to France, he had been constrained to seek a sustenance by taking service in the family of Bishop Gaddi; and that consequently the statement of Ramusio is incorrect; or that the second voyage of which he speaks took place much earlier than was supposed. He adds, however, that the uncertainty which hangs over the life of Verrazzano is so great, as to render it impossible to come to any satisfactory conclusion." Año || M.D.LXXXIIII.

2 unnumbered leaves. 280 × 206 mm. There are three papers in this publication: 1. The royal decree on "Los Diez Dias del Año," dated at Aranjuez, May 14, 1583, and received in Peru April 9, 1584; 2. A royal cedula, addressed to Don Martin Enriquez, Viceroy in Peru, enjoining compliance with the reformed calendar, bearing the same date of issue and of reception as the decree; and 3. The act (auto) of the Real Audiencia, dated July 14, ordering the printing and distribution of the decree and cedula. The dates are thus recorded because they justify a claim that this was an earlier issue of Ricardo's press than the Doctrina Christiana, page 300, supra, the "provision real" for the latter being dated August 12, 1584. The four official signatures are the same for the "auto" and for the "provision real." This "Pragmatica" thus becomes the earliest known issue of the press of Lima, Peru. Purchased in 1910.

DE BRY COLLECTION OF VOYAGES

BRY VOYAGES

The Voyages of De Bry have been made the subject of numerous studies by bibliographers and collectors, without attaining an agreement on the proper contents of a complete set. Owing to the nature of the volumes and the manner of publication, no two series are exactly the same, and the many lists can only indicate the differences, folio by folio and plate by plate, as shown in the set immediately in hand. The titles of these various lists and comparisons are given in the Bulletin of the New York Public Library, VIII. 230, introductory to a "Catalogue of the De Bry Collection of Voyages in the New York Public Library," a collection made by Mr. James Lenox, and held to be the finest in existence. To that list should be added the account of the De Bry Collection in the library of E. Dwight Church, printed in the Church Catalogue (Cole, 1907). The most complete comparative study of the Voyages is that of the Earl of Crawford, issued in 1884 (Bibliotheca Lindensiana, Collations and Notes, No. 3), to which reference will be made in the following pages. It may be stated that the series in the John Carter Brown Library ranks among the first in extent, condition, and completeness, but in this Catalogue it has not been thought necessary to itemize its contents leaf by leaf, as the special student may readily obtain on request such a description of the particular volume in which he is interested. Mr. John Russell Bartlett prepared in 1875 for the old Catalogue (I. 316–410) such a detailed account of the Brown set, with bibliographical notes. For the contents of each part or volume, and the sources from which they were derived, the Mémoire sur la Collection des Grands et Petits Voyages (1802), by Armand Gaston Camus, should be consulted.

John Carter Brown, I. 412 [a]. De Bure's: 10 unnumbered leaves. 335×235 mm. John Carter Brown, I. 412 [b]. Owing to its rarity the Elenchus has been twice reprinted in close imitation of the original issue, but without the engraved title-page and without a change of imprint: 1. At Paris, by Guillaume François de Bure, probably about the time of his study of the Bry series in 1768; 2. At London, by [James?] Edwards. The original and English reprint give 4 unnumbered leaves to the Elenchus itself, and the French 5 leaves. The different issues may be identified by the typographical ornaments at the top and end of the "Preface," which begins on verso of printed title:

The variations in words and arrangement are given in Crawford 103. All three issues are in the John Carter Brown Library.

Map and plates. The title-page is without the privilege, but bears evidence that a slip was once pasted on it. The initials C. C. A. are those of Carolus Clusius Atrebatensis (Charles de L'Écluse, the botanist). Joannes With is John White. Crawford 105. Church, No. 140 (except for privilege). John Carter Brown, I. 396.

The text is a translation of Hariot's A briefe and true report of the new found land of Virginia, London, 1588.

Another Issue (2).

There are two title-pages, one having the imprint space blank, and the other with the central square blank. The second may have been used in the German edition and had the printed slips pasted on the engraved title, the slips having been carelessly removed. The verso of this leaf clearly shows the same marks as the German edition. Church, No. 144 (where it is described as the third issue of the second edition). John Carter Brown, I. 396 [d].

In John Carter Brown, I. page 326, will be found a table showing the termination of the first line of the text describing the plates in the four impressions listed; but what is there called the "fourth impression" is the second edition [c. 1608].

The three voyages of Drake were: 1, that of 1577–80, written by a Portuguese, Niño de Sylva; 2. the circumnavigation of the world ending in 1585, drawn from an account written by Thomas Cates; and 3, the expedition against Panama, 1595–96, prepared from Drake's log-book and accounts by his followers. Candish, or Cavendish, sailed round the world in 1586–88, and Francis Pretty, a member of the party, wrote an account which was used both by Hakluyt (page 317) and De Bry. Ralegh's first voyage to Guiana in 1595 was written by himself (page 349, supra); but the account of the second voyage, 1596, was by Lawrence Keymis, a member of Ralegh's party (page 343, supra).

Not only is the title-page different in arrangement and map from the title of the first issue, but signature A is entirely reset, and rearranged. The Præfatio ad Lectorem (pages 1, 2) of the first issue is omitted, and pages 3–6 are reset in a smaller size of type so as to make 3 in place of 4 pages. After page 6 it follows the first issue. Page 2 is on the verso of title, giving a collation 78, 99 [1] pages, and the Tabulæ as before. 358×238 mm. Brunet believes that this "must be an edition made for Merian after 1625," but he knew it only from a catalogue description, and as so large a part of the text is of the first issue, his supposition cannot be accepted. Crawford 143. John Carter Brown, I. 405 [a].

In addition to what is in the first edition, this copy contains the Historiæ Antipodum (Liber Tertius), an account of the expedition of the Dutch under Pieter van der Does against the Spaniards in 1599. As the first and second books of the Historiæ Antipodum are in the second edition of Part IX (page 408, infra), it has been conjectured that the third book was intended for that Part also, but it is never found with it. "The catch-words, signatures, and pagination indicate that it belongs to Part VIII, the text of its heading that it belongs to Part IX." N. Y. Pub. Lib. Bull., VIII. 235.

Indias, Seville, 1590 (page 321, supra). Although Acosta's work appeared first in Latin at Salamanca in 1589 (page 315, supra) and again at Cologne in 1596 (page 339, supra), a new version was prepared for De Bry. John Carter Brown, I. page 308, errs in stating that the text of De Bry is a translation made by Gothard Arthus, first "from the Dutch into German, and from that into Latin." See title to German version of Part IX, infra. The voyage of Sebald de Weert to the Moluccas in 1598, written by Zacharias Heyns, was first published at Amsterdam, 1600; and that of Olivier de Noort, 1598–1601, was printed by Claesz at Amsterdam, 1602 (see Vol. II of this Catalogue). The translation by Arthus of Noort from the Dutch into German was published separately by Becker in 1602, as well as in the German, Part IX, the same year (page 409, infra).

The words "Postrema Pars" on the first title, M. Brunet thinks, "seem to indicate that the heirs of Theodore De Bry intended to end their collection there; and, in fact, it was not till seventeen years later, in 1619, that Johann Theodor De Bry continued it by issuing the Tenth Part. He had published the German text of the same Part the preceding year."

A volume made up of a translation of Parts XIII and XIV of the German issues published in 1628 and 1630. The contents are listed in Church, I. 401.

The plate showing the Bay of All Saints and San Salvador differs not only from that which appears in the Lenox copy of this Part, but also from the plate in the Latin version. The plan is the same as in the Latin volume, but the lettering and spelling of names show variations, and there is a scroll extending quite across the copper, above the town, with the legend: "Abriß der Baya vnd Meerbuterns, de Todos os Santos || vnd de d Statt S Saluador von Hollandern eingenomẽn." The measurements of the engraved plate are 186×366 mm. compared with 187×362 mm. for the Latin plate.

HULSIUS' COLLECTION OF VOYAGES

LEVINUS HULSIUS' COLLECTION OF VOYAGES

Sammlung von Sechs und Zwanzig Schiffahrten in verschiedene fremde Länder durch Levinus Hulsius und einige andere, aus dem Holländischen ins Deutsche übersetzt und mit allerhand Anmerkungen versehen. Nürnberg, Franckfort, Oppenheim und Hanover, 1598–1650.

The above is the usual form in which the series of twenty-six parts, known as Hulsius' Collection of Voyages, is catalogued. Hulse was born in Ghent, travelled in European countries, and in 1594 settled at Frankfort on the Main as a publishing bookseller. Among his friends were the De Brys. In 1598 he issued his first part of the Voyages, and eight parts had appeared before his death in 1606. His widow and successors continued to publish parts, some in connection with the De Brys, until the twenty-sixth part was issued in 1650. An edition of Part III was put out in 1660, and one of Part V in 1663. Less ambitious than the De Brys, Hulsius contented himself with translations into German, only Parts IV and V appearing in Latin, in 1599, and with doubtful success, as the experiment was not continued. The form, a quarto instead of a folio, and a better regard for text, gave great popularity to the Hulsius series, but, like the De Bry Voyages, sets are rare, and hardly two sets will agree in detail. The collation of the Church set is full and satisfactory, and the Lenox set has been described by Mr. Eames in Contributions to a Catalogue of the Lenox Library, No. 1, Voyages of Hulsius. The Catalogue of the John Carter Brown Library, I. 467–503, describes the set as it now is. Asher, in 1839, published a Bibliographical Essay on Hulsius.
